

Table of Contents

Acknowledgements.....	7
1 Introduction.....	9
2 Mind-Tricking Narratives: Between Classical and Art-Cinema Narration....	17
2.1 A Matter of Complex Narrative	17
2.2 Hollywood and Complex Storytelling	17
2.3 Approaching Mind-Tricking Narratives	26
2.3.1 The ‘Deceiver’	30
2.3.2 Devices of Deception	31
2.3.3 Awareness of Deception	32
2.4 Classical Narration versus Art-Cinema Narration	35
2.5 Concluding Remarks	37
3 Manifestations of Mind-Tricking Narratives: Some Case Studies	39
3.1 Eternal Moonshine of The Simpsons ’ Version of a Mind-Tricking Narrative	39
3.2 “Are You Watching Closely?” The Prestige versus The Illusionist	46
3.3 Authentication Authority and Narrative Self-Erasure in Fight Club	56
3.4 Reversing Cause and Effect: Memento	78
4 The Sophistication of the Viewer: How We Have ‘Learned’ to Understand Complex Narrative	89
4.1 The Concept of Time in Narrative	90
4.2 Montage in Avant-Garde Film	99
4.3 21 Grams – A Case Study	104
4.4 The Postmodern Concept of Time	110
4.5 Why Postmodernism Is NOT the ‘End of Everything’	115
4.6 Pulp Fiction – A Case Study	120
4.7 The Television and MTV Generation	127
5 Don’t Spoil the Ending! A Cognitive Approach.....	131
5.1 Cognitive Film Theory	133
5.1.1 David Bordwell’s Model	133
5.1.2 Edward Branigan’s Model	142
5.2 “The Kansas City Shuffle” – Lucky Number Slevin	146
6 Conclusion.....	155
7 Bibliography.....	159
8 Appendix: Sample List of Mind-Tricking Narratives in Film	171